

Those Precious Night Hours...

FemmeScience launches its luxurious Night Cream that works overnight to revitalize skin.

MIAMI, FLORIDA – September 16, 2010 – Beauty sleep isn't just a cliché. Night time is the best time to care for the skin. Skin cell regeneration almost doubles at night, replacing damaged skin cells with new ones, producing more collagen, and destroying free radicals. Wouldn't it be a waste to let those recommended 7-9 hours slip away without boosting the skin's revitalization process? With the proper treatment, a woman can wake up to a luminous and glowing complexion. Anti-aging ingredients are better absorbed and stay more active at night because they are not exposed to UV rays, which can lessen their efficacy. Make sure the skin is getting the most out of its slumber with FemmeScience's Night Cream, a luxurious nighttime treatment that will support skin's renewal all night long.

FemmeScience's Night Cream moisturizes and rejuvenates the complexion, while helping to promote cell turnover and improving the overall smoothness of the skin. This rich cream nourishes with vitamins A, C and E, which stay more active when applied at night and provide free-radical protection. Powerful anti-aging peptides (proteins that make up collagen) support the increased collagen production that happens while sleeping. This can help to smooth fine lines and help increase skin resiliency. Water loss through the skin also increases at night, so it's important to use skin care treatments that hydrate the skin. Hyaluronic acid and glycerin in the Night Cream work continuously to draw water to the skin to hydrate both dry and oily areas without clogging pores.
